Address of Thanks for His Majesty's Speech from the Throne; to assure His Majesty, that the Commons of His United Kingdom embrace, with the utmost Satisfaction, the first Opportunity of humbly testifying to His Majesty, those Sentiments of Duty and Attachment to His Majesty's Person and Government, and of Zeal for the Honour of His Crown and the Interests of His Dominions, which will uniformly direct all their Proceedings: That they trust the Advantages resulting from the Accomplishment of that important Measure which distinguishes the present Æra, and which is calculated to augment and consolidate the Strength and Resources of the Empire, and to cement more closely to the Interests and Affections of His Subjects, will encourage and animate a brave and loyal People to that Vigour, Energy and Firmness, which the Circumstances of our present Situation so peculiarly require: That they lament the unfortunate course of Events on the Continent, and the Consequences which must be expected to result from it, and which indeed cannot fail to be matter of Anxiety and Concern to all who have a just Feeling for the Security and Independence of Europe: That, at such a Period, it must fill them with Astonishment that any of the Powers of Europe, instead of concerting the Means of mutual Defence against their common and increasing Danger, should be engaged in Endeavours to weaken the Naval force of the British Empire, which has hitherto opposed so powerful an Obstacle to the inordinate Ambition of France: That the Disrespect with which the Representations which His Majesty directed to be made to the Court of Petersburgh, in consequence of the Outrages committed against the Ships, Property, and Persons of His Subjects, have been treated, and the subsequent Acts of Injustice and Violence which have aggravated the Proceedings of which His Majesty complained, must excite the just indignation of His Majesty's faithful Subjects: That they feel the indispensable Necessity of vigorous and effectual Measures to repel the Aggressions of any Confederacy formed for the Purpose of establishing by Force a new Code of Maritime Law, inconsistent with the Rights, and hostile to the Interests of this Country: That they will see, with the greatest Satisfaction, the first Moment when His Majesty's ancient Relations with Powers long in Amity with His Majesty can be renewed consistently with the Honour of His Majesty's Crown, and with a just Regard to the Safety of His Subjects; but that His Majesty may at all Times rely on their affording him the most vigorous and effectual Support, in a firm Determination to assert those Principles which are grounded on the System of Public Law, so long established and recognized in Europe; and to maintain, to the utmost, against every Attack, the Naval Rights and the Interests of His Empire: That they acknowledge with Gratitude the gracious Expressions of Concern with which His Majesty observes the continued Necessity of adding to the Burdens of His People; but, that while they sincerely participate in that Sentiment, it is impossible for them not to feel the Importance of providing effectual Means for those Exertions which are indispensably requisite for the Honour and Security of the Country: That they beg His Majesty to believe, that their Deliberations will be uniformly and diligently directed to the great Object of improving the Benefits of that happy Union, which, by the Blessing of Providence, has now been effected, and of promoting to the utmost the Prosperity of every Part of His Majesty's Dominions: That they will take the earliest Opportunity to resume the Enquiries, prosecuted in the last Session of Parliament, as to the best Means of relieving His Majesty's Subjects from the Pressure of the present high Price of Provisions, and of preventing, as far as it can be done by human Foresight, the Recurrence of similar Difficulties: That, impressed with a deep and grateful Sense of His Majesty's unceasing Anxiety to contribute to the Happiness of His People, they have the fullest Reliance on His availing Himself of the earliest Opportunity which shall afford a Prospect of terminating the present Contest, on Grounds consistent with our Security and Honour, and with the Maintenance of those Rights on which our Naval Strength must always principally depend; and that they shall cordially participate with His Majesty in Sentiments of the truest and most heartfelt Satisfaction, whenever the Dispositions of our Enemies shall enable His Majesty thus to restore to the Subjects of His United Kingdom, the Blessings of Peace, and thereby confirm and augment those Advantages which result from our internal Situation, and which even under the Difficulties of War, have carried to so great an Extent the Agriculture, Manufactures, Commerce, and Revenue of the Country; 2 Feb. Amendment proposed thereto, not made; Address resolved on; Committee appointed to prepare it; to withdraw immediately, and King's Speech referred; ibid.
